Dated : 17.9.90.

Ref: Bhowanipore P.S. Case No.87 dated 6.3.90 U/s.302/376/3941 C.

R E P O R T.

The exhibit B was a latch-cum-lock having sliding bolt which keeps a door bolted from inside by spring action when the door is pushed outward from inside or pulled from outside. The only way to unbolt a door thus bolted, from outside the room is by operating a key through a key hold, and from inside the room by operating the unbolting knob. A door thus bolted could further be locked mechanically from inside the room by restricting the freedom of unbolting knob by operating a separate locking knob beside the unbolting knob.

The exhibit C was a faint cream coloured button.

The exhibit K U was a cream coloured full sleeved open breast synthetic shirt. All the buttons stitched on the shirt excepting the third button from the top on the front vertical buttons pleat were light cream coloured and stitched in similar pattern with off white thread of 3 ply and Z type twist; whereas the third button was white, stitched in a different pattern with milky white thread of 2 ply and Z type twist.

Mark of application of force, downward with respect to the shirt could be observed beneath the third white button, at the position where the original buttons had been stitched.

All the buttons on the front buttons pleat of the shirt (U) excepting the third white button were cut off and compared with the button marked C. It was observed that the button C was similar with the buttones cut off from the shirt in respect of shape, dimensions, colour and weight upto the hundredth part of a milligram.

The paper packet W contained one black baggie T-Shirt, one brassiere and one Cheddar. Marks of application of force in the form of disjoining of stitched, 5 cms. on the right, 4.5 cms. on the left of neck plead joints; and tears of 3 cms. on the right and 3.5 cms. on the left of shoulder joints could be observed. The brassiere and Cheddar had no significant mark of violence.
